THE LODGE

The name Mahua Kothi draws its inspiration from one of India's most beautiful trees, the Madhuca Indica, or as it is commonly known, the Mahua or butter tree. The twelve charming suites or Kutiyas (jungle village huts) are newly built in the 40 acre grounds of the renowned tented camp formerly known as Churhat Kothi. The original Kothi (homestead) comprising the guest areas remain and has been extensively renovated, but the guest accommodation is all brand new.

GUEST ACCOMODATION

- Charming individual Kutiyas built in the vernacular style of Central India
- Each is accessed through private courtyards with shaded seating and traditional mud floors
- Wooden shutters, tapered mud coloured walls (finished by hand) in lime and earth washes, open rafters with roughly hewn wooden beams, handmade pottery roof tiles, floors dressed in katni stone strips set in lime mortar
- Stylish ensuite bathrooms and house gowns in traditional local cloth
- Richly coloured local textiles in shades of rust and burnt orange
- Roll-down mats to keep the early morning sun out
- Ceiling fans and air conditioning
- Built-in seating in yellow situ (local cement screed)
- Yoga amenities in a bag (complete with instructions)
- Traditional Indian games of marbles and Chaupad
- Hand blended natural guest amenities
- In-room Ayurvedic massage
- Rose and Khus (Verbena) sherbets and pitchers of iced water for guests to mix themselves
- Beautiful terracotta roof that floats over the Kutiya – MP style

BANDHAVGARH NATIONAL PARK

The dramatic landscape nestled amongst the Vindhya and Satpura ranges, features tropical forests and woodlands, and steep rocky hills with flat grasslands in the valleys below. An ancient 1000 year old fort, reclining statue of Lord Vishnu, and the dense Sal jungle combined with the grasslands make Bandhavgarh one of the most beautiful parks in India.

FLORA

Bandhavgarh has a large variety of tree cover and excellent tree and foliage concentration. Approximately half the park is covered with fine trees, while mixed forests are found in the higher reaches of the hills. In the slightly higher elevations, there is a more mixed vegetation of sali, saj, saja and dhobin etc. Beautiful stretches of bamboo and grasslands extend to the north. The main wildlife viewing takes place in the core of the park with its picturesque, wooded hills.

FAUNA

Bandhavgarh supports one of the highest densities of tigers in India. Its hilly open terrain includes many large grassland meadows that offer good chances of tiger sightings. The density of its big cat population has made Bandhavgarh world famous. The park is also blessed with a large variety of mammals: leopard, chital (spotted deer), sambar deer, dhole, nilgai, wild boar, chinkara, sloth bear, rhesus macaque, black faced langaur, jungle cat, hyena, porcupine, jackal, fox and wild dog.
